Balance Transfer Terms and Conditions

- You must continue to make payments to any account from which you transfer a balance until you have confirmation from Westpac that such account has been credited pursuant to these balance transfer arrangements. Westpac accepts no liability for late payment charges and any fees or charges related to your other account, including any costs to close that account.
- You can transfer up to 95% of your credit limit. Your card must remain within its credit limit after the balance has been transferred. Westpac's current credit card lending criteria apply to all applications and transfers, as well as the Westpac Conditions of Use for the applicable credit card.
- Balances may be transferred from New Zealand issued Visa, Mastercard, American Express (Centurion Finance) and Diners Club cards. Balances may also be transferred from other financial organisations at Westpac's discretion, including but not limited to hire purchase accounts, store cards, and personal loans from other banks. You cannot transfer a balance from a Westpac card or loan. You are responsible for any residual interest charges or late transaction fees.
- The balance transfer is subject to Westpac approval and Westpac has the right to refuse any transfers.
- By applying for this balance transfer, you acknowledge that if Westpac processes your balance transfer request before you sign or use your card or use any other payment instrument to access your account, the transfer will be subject to the credit card conditions of use for the applicable card.

- Interest will be charged on a daily basis from the date of transfer.
- Should your balance transfer be for a fixed period of time as part of a promotion (for example, 12 months), any outstanding balance at the end of the promotional period will be charged at the applicable standard purchase interest rate which may be higher than the current applicable purchase interest rate.
- Payments made to your card account will be applied against balance transfers (until paid in full) before cash advances and other purchases, but after charges and interest that have accrued. If a customer has multiple balance transfer rates, payments will be applied to the lowest rate first.
